

"The program totally shifted my paradigm and lead to a more gradual and calculated approach to building online programs at my institution."

Dr. Carl Moore

Assistant Chief Academic Officer, University of the District of Columbia

"IELOL was a major boost in my career... I owe a great deal of my clear and calculated thinking to this program."

"IELOL WAS A MAJOR BOOST IN MY CAREER!"

What was your interest in IELOL?

I had already been teaching online for over 5 years and assisting faculty in converting courses online, but I saw IELOL as an opportunity to help advance my leadership skills beyond course development/technology use.

To whom and why you would recommend this program?

IELOL is an essential professional development experience ('rite of passage') for anyone who plans to provide leadership for online programs on an institutional and/or global scale.

About the IELOL program, in his words.

The program brought individuals from all over the world to be connected with global leaders in online education. During the experience participants are educated on policies, practices and present/future trends in online education. We were also provided an opportunity to team up with each other to solve real world problems and practice providing presentations to senior administrators.

About Carl

Dr. Moore is the Assistant Chief Academic Officer at the University of the District of Columbia (UDC). He also serves as Certificate faculty in Temple University's Teaching in Higher Education Certificate program. Dr. Moore has dedicated the past several years to advancing the field of faculty development by serving as Department Chair at UDC, Assistant Director of the Teaching and Learning Center at Temple University, and Co-Chair of the POD Network Conference. He has also served in a number of student services leadership roles charged with enhancing student success, leveraging technology to enhance student outcomes at the course and institutional levels.

TOP BENEFITS OF IELOL

- An opportunity to think about online education on multiple levels from multiple vantage points.
- Practice scaling up best practices/trends for institutions.
- A colleague that I met at IELOL invited me to edit a book with him, and we have already published!
- Refined understanding of online programs and how to build them.
- Network of dynamic and knowledgeable colleagues.

Become a leader in online learning at IELOL. Visit www.onlinelearning-c.org/ielol

Join a unique blended-learning leadership development program which serves the development needs of emerging leaders responsible for a variety of online learning initiatives.

"A career-changing experience that provides you with a high caliber network and frames your mind for the future of online education. "

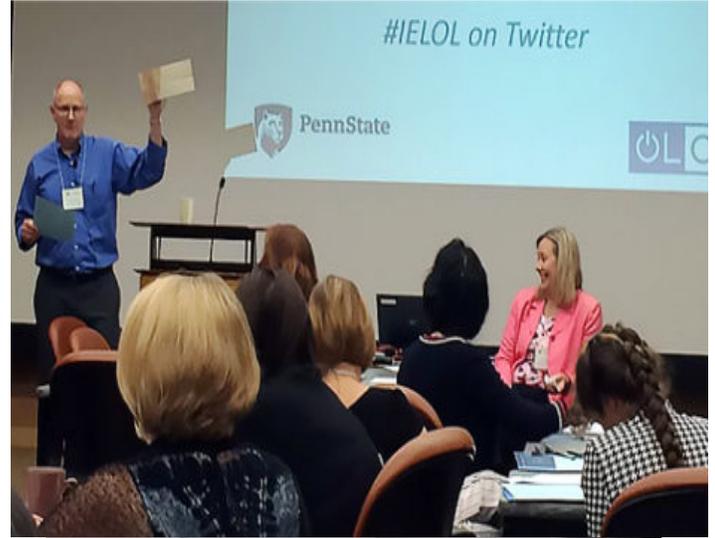

Dr. Carl Moore

Assistant Chief Academic Officer, University of the District of Columbia

How did the IELOL program help you in your career?

IELOL was a major boost in my career - it came at a time when my role with online courses/instructional technology was shifting beyond work on individual courses. When I attended I was in the middle of drafting an RFP to secure an Online Program Management vendor for an eSchool. IELOL helped refine my understanding of the factors to consider on institutional and 'glocal' levels concerning the eSchool. The program totally shifted my paradigm and lead to a more gradual and calculated approach to building online programs at my institution. I would also be remiss if I didn't highlight how invaluable it was having individuals like Larry Ragan, Penn State, to mentor and process with well after the program. The decision to not rush the build of an eSchool was one of the most important decisions of my career thus far and time has proven it to have been a smart one. I owe a great deal my clear and calculated thinking to IELOL.

ABOUT IELOL

The Institute for Emerging Leadership in Online Learning (IELOL) is a unique blended-learning program sponsored by University of Central Florida (UCF) and the Online Learning Consortium that provides a platform for growth, learning, and leadership development for educators who are tasked with creating or developing online learning programs.

THE PROCESS

The program brings participants together via an online introduction and discussion group, an on-site immersive team-building workshop, and a three-week group project applying the leadership skills developed during the immersion.

THE RESULTS

- Acquire the tools and skills to enable you to shape the future of online learning within your institution.
- Become part of a growing network of alums that includes national and international leaders in the field of higher and online education.
- Receive a one-year individual membership in Online Learning Consortium (OLC).
- Receive a complementary registration to the IELOL Masters Class as a part of the Online Learning Consortium annual conference.

Become a leader in online learning at IELOL. Visit www.onlinelearning-c.org/ielol

Join a unique blended-learning leadership development program which serves the development needs of emerging leaders responsible for a variety of online learning initiatives.